From the Chaplain....

Many of you will be familiar with the poem 'Footsteps in the sand' in which the poet looks back over his life and notices two sets of footprints, where God has accompanied him through all that has happened. Wondering why there is only a single set during the sad and painful times in his life, the poet questions why God would have abandoned him when he was most in need of comfort; only to hear the answer that it was at those times that God carried him. Our reading this week of two disciples travelling the road to Emmaus, deeply entrenched in their grief and unable to recognise Jesus as he joins them on the road, reminds me very much of that poem. There are times in our lives when we might be very aware of God's presence and there are times when he seems distant as though he has abandoned us. Even Mother Teresa, who dedicated her life to seeking and serving God among the poor and dying in Calcutta, suffered from times of a terrible sense of absence in her spiritual life. Writing to a friend in 1979 she said, 'the silence and the emptiness is so great, that I look and do not see, ...listen and do not hear,... the tongue moves but does not speak'. Doubt, far from being the opposite of faith, is a part of it. It is in questioning and seeking that we eventually find. The opposite of faith is not doubt, but fear: it is fear that paralyses us into inaction and causes us to retreat from life in all its fullness. Just as we might not notice the warmth of the sun in the winter, yet it is still there; or be aware of the turning of the Earth on its axis, which it continues to do: so too will we have times when we are oblivious to God's presence with us and his deep love for us. Yet he is still there and still faithful to us. Like the disciples on the road to Emmaus, one day we will look back and recognise how he was working in our lives all along.

Next Week's Theme for Worship

God's presence

Acts 17:22-32

At The King's CE School we believe that everyone is unique and created in God's image. We enable all to achieve their God-given potential; to grow, learn and aspire; to transform their lives and the lives of others and to journey in faith without limits within a unified, respectful and harmonious community.
